General Guidelines:

- This is a form that our placement coordinators overseas will use to help secure an interview at a suitable placement in your area of interest.
- Check all boxes that apply above.
- Fill out all of the information below. Answers should be detailed, professional, and typed. Don't name a particular organization as placement with that organization may not be possible and will limit the dissemination of your application to other organizations.
- Submit a one page resume that includes all relevant course work, work and internship experience, and computer skills.

Nature of Desired Field Work, Directed Research, or Documentary Film Assignment

Please answer these questions on a separate typed page making sure that you state the question before answering.

- 1. Provide general information on the fieldwork, directed research, or film you wish to undertake.
In this section, indicate the primary focus or emphasis of the work you would like to do, related to your major or area of interest. For internships, please indicate whether your preference is to work in a locally-owned company or organization, joint-venture, or foreign enterprise. Keep in mind that there are some limitations on what students are allowed to do in certain fields. The more general your expectations are, the more freedom our coordinators will have to search for suitable placements.
- 2. Summarize qualifying background and/or previous experience relevant to your fieldwork, research, or film request.
In this section, please include any previous experience that would be relevant to your internship (e.g. internships or jobs you have held; previous cultural or academic experiences). Be sure to include the nature of your positions and responsibilities. Specify any special skills you have.
- 3. What academic or career directed benefit do you hope to derive from your internship, research, or film?
In this section, explain why this internship, research, or film is relevant to your career and/or academic goals. Describe how this experience will enhance your future plans.
